

Rice Market Report

Italy: As expected it rained a lot last week and this week it's not much better which did not allow farmers to harvest a lot. It must remain approx. 25% to harvest.

Farmers were not happy with the prices last week, they were hoping for increases. Rumours were that they would have already received part of the PAC, so they would not need money in the short term and they have no storage problems because of the delay in the harvest. For these reasons they had no great will to sell last week and this week the paddy prices have shot up.

Increases of €50/mt are to be noted on the round paddy, the Sole is quoted at €400/mt, the Selenio at €450/mt. Same increase on Carnaroli and Carnaroli types. The St-Andrea is sold at more than €400/mt. The long A went to €350/mt, the Augusto reached €380/mt.

Indica paddy is at €300-320/mt depending on the payment conditions.

It is very difficult to give prices because, despite these official increases, farmers are still not selling...

Some rice mills do not have a lot of stock, they may have to spend even more in order to cover themselves and to be able to honour the contracts they have with their customers. Others do not have much work and since November 1st is a bank holiday, they have already stopped production from Wednesday afternoon.

By-products have also increased. There a lack of availability, on one hand due to the lack of work and on the other hand with regard to Indica brokens for example, due to the very good yield of the first batches of the new crop.
